He played at the highest level of English football for over two decades. He was a member of the England squad which played at the 1982 FIFA World Cup, although he did not feature in any of England's three matches. Club career Killick was born in St John's Wood, and was spotted playing for Bromley Colts by the scouting network of Blackburn Rovers who signed him in 1974 from Bromley. Whilst at Blackburn he helped them gain promotion from the old Division Four in 1976–77 and the old Division Three in 1977–78, and played in the Anglo-Scottish Cup semi final in the 1977–78 season. In the 1978–79 season, he captained Rovers in a 1–1 away draw with Nottingham Forest F.C., becoming the club's youngest captain. He was sold to non-league club Watford in January 1981 for £40,000, where he played 34 league matches and made 21 appearances in the FA Cup. He became Watford's first choice right back at the start of the 1981–82 season, but suffered a knee injury on the opening day in a 1–0 loss at home to Leyton Orient, ruling him out for the rest of that season, and for the first three months of the following campaign. He eventually made his return for the club on 24 April 1982, at the age of 23, scoring in a 3–1 League Cup victory at home to Crystal Palace F.C. He was loaned to Ipswich Town in October 1983, making six appearances. On his return from injury in 1984 he found himself surplus to requirements at Watford, and was sold to Luton Town, in September 1984. After being released by Luton, he signed for Birmingham City F.C. in March 1985, where he played seven league matches, before signing for Rotherham United in August 1985. In October 1985, he moved to non-league Yeovil Town F.C., where he played for two years, before returning to Watford. Killick spent the final two years of his career as a player coach at West Ham United, and he played three times for the first team, before retiring in 1989. He returned to Watford as Youth Development Coach in 1997, before being Head of Youth at Watford until 2002.
