Gorilla vs. Flash (Performance Comparison)Q: What is the difference between Java 8 (Lambda and Stream) and Log4J? Please find the below code from couple of the tutorials where Java 8 (Lambda and Stream) and Log4J are used. Questions: 1> First code is working fine whereas the second code is not working but it will be obvious (at least to me!) once it is explained? 2> Are lambda and stream different things that complement each other or one is in the long run better than other? 3> Also, I have a fresh program, what would be the simple way to see if the java 8 lambdas are used in the program or java 8 streams are used? Is there any straight forward command in a command line? Or do I need to execute the program on Java 8 and then it will tell me what are the things to go with? Code: import org.apache.log4j.Logger; import org.apache.log4j.Level; import java.util.*; public class LambdasVsStreams{ public static void main(String args[]){ List arrayList = Arrays.asList(1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8); final int MAX_RETRIES = 10; final long startTime = System.currentTimeMillis(); int attempts = 0; System.out.println("Please enter your name."); Scanner input= new Scanner(System.in); //System.out.println("How many names do you have?"); //int numberOfNames= input.nextInt(); String name; do{ System.out.println("Please enter a name:"); name = input.next(); if (attempts%2 == 0
