I purchased a new laptop on 02-12-2020 and they have now sent me it. I have tried to open the Serial number that came on the laptop and get an error message. I did get a message that there was a new version on the Software Centre. I did not do that . . What gives? . A: The serial number is not for the computer, it is for the software. If the software has been installed on a number of computers, they may all have different serial numbers. Your software will not work on another computer. You have to register each computer separately, in order to get the correct serial number. You can check your serial number for example with this code: import os.system("dism.exe /get-softwareinstancesofwareids /serial:" + serial_number + ". You can also check your serial number for example with this code: import os.serial_number = os.environ["SOFTWAREID"] print serial_number In both cases, replace serial_number with the name of your serial number you would like to check.
